In the 2013 West Hollywood State of the City address by the City Manager, Paul Arevalo, Paul focused his speech almost entirely on how ART is one of the most important aspects of that city. Art is what turns WeHo from a place into a place to be, a place to experience a culture, and a place to remember and share. Art is what brings life out of us and provokes connected thoughts and feelings - it is free therapy. He said West Hollywood's emphasis on supporting both visual arts throughout the city and artistic programs offered to the public is what made the city economically successful, what emphasized the culture of the city, and what made both tourists and residents want to be there. His speech really spoke to me, and having traveled to cities around the country and world, I couldn't agree more with his statements.

I think the City of Newport Beach and its residents would generally agree about the importance of art too. For example, you can tell significant effort and planning went into the sculpture park at the new Civic Center - which I take everyone who visits me to go see. Everyone loves the sculpture park, and remembers it as a core aspect of Newport Beach. I am not sure if the Arts Commission has anything to do with the Sandcastle Contests down at the beach, but those incredible displays of the our resident's artistic abilities are definitely something I see showcased in articles about Newport Beach. I have noticed fantastic workshops for calligraphy and painting offered by the City to the public, and Newport Beach also has amazing nonprofits like the Chuck Jones Center, which focus on using art to benefit those in need in our community. I would love to see, and I think our residents would love to see, further efforts towards the placement of impressive, memorable, and "instagrammable" artworks by local artists throughout our city to increase our international recognition and tourism. Because art is so good for both physical and mental health, I would love to see the city partner more with or support groups that want to increase the availability of art and artistic expression to local schools, hospitals, retirement homes, veteran's centers, etc.

I have been wanting to get involved with the city government since I returned to the city after law school, as I have always been highly committed to public service. I think this commission is a perfect fit for me because it is focused on two things that truly spark joy within me: local public service and the arts. I know I have not been involved on the commission before, but I have experience both with art and governance, and I am a very quick learner dedicated to making an impact anywhere I get involved. Thank you so much for considering me for this vacancy.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit my application for service as either a Library Trustee or a City Arts Commissioner for the City of Newport Beach, my hometown. I have an abiding love and respect for our City and have always been involved - even as a child/student here - in doing something for the community that I love and call "home." I spent countless hours in the library growing up here, it was one of my favorite places - and proved to be one of my daughter's favorite destinations, as well. My father, Ed Conn, was a Library Trustee in the 1980s. I'd love to be able to give back to the Library and the City by serving as a Trustee. I would be proud to be a part of that current and future legacy. My skill sets are varied and I believe would be valuable to either position. I have an incredible amount of institutional/native knowledge about Newport Beach, I have a love for libraries, literature and the arts. I have exceptional communications skills and am open-minded, intelligent and work well with committees and groups. I am committed to doing the right thing for our City. Thank you again for your time and consideration.
